OVERVIEW

Christopher concentrates his practice in litigation and dispute resolution, representing clients in matters involving contract issues, zoning, personal injury, municipal ordinances, and criminal defense work. He develops practical case strategies, prepares matters for trial, and guides disputes toward efficient and effective resolution.

Before joining the firm, Christopher served as an Assistant Prosecutor with the Massillon Law Department, where he developed strong courtroom judgment, advocacy skills, and the ability to evaluate facts quickly and strategically. His experience includes trying cases before juries and handling appellate matters, giving him a practical understanding of litigation from trial preparation through post-trial review.

Christopher also has experience in estate planning, probate, contract review, and business matters. He is committed to providing clear guidance, responsive communication, and thoughtful litigation strategies that help clients navigate conflict with confidence.
