OVERVIEW

Steve is an Ohio tax attorney serving as the first call his clients make when faced with a tax challenge. The more complicated the challenge, the more he can help you and your company. This includes representing the Cincinnati Reds before the Ohio Supreme Court to exempt their purchases of bobbleheads (and other promotional items) from Ohio sales and use tax.

Typically, Steve's clients own or manage a business. He works directly with clients to save them substantial amounts of money and resolve even their most complicated tax and general business issues. Steve's clients think of him as their trusted advisor that, while valuable, is so hard to find.

Steve concentrates his practice on Ohio sales, income and commercial activity taxes as well as transactions with federal tax implications. This includes comprehensive Ohio tax audits, appeals, and planning; sales of real property; and the acquisition or sale of businesses. Steve shares his knowledge through following and creating key developments, speaking, and writing to both legal and non-legal audiences. Steve's experience helps him achieve the best possible results as efficiently as possible for each and every client.
